- 1} If guests will be out in the cold, set out an arrangement of cozy gloves and scarves, and encourage them to bundle up.
- 2} Winter weddings beg for an icy palette, like the silver and white tones on this show-stopping five-tier cake by Cocoa & Fig.
- 3} The perfect addition to a wintry dessert table? Snowball cookies, of course.

- 4} Set atop an assemblage of beaded champagne and gold linens, a cascading arrangement of rich red roses from Molly's Flower Studio turns up the glamour on your head table.
- 5} A menu card designed by Watermark Stationery will whet your guests' appetites and let them know what to expect, from the salad course to the late-night snacks.

- 6} Dessert shooters are even sweeter ornamented with monogrammed skewers.
- 7} Dripping in gold accents, these opulent place settings are balanced with a bit of rustic charm thanks to pinecone place card holders.
- 8} Oversized snow-white barrel chairs from Après Party and Tent Rental have just enough room for the bride and groom to snuggle up during a stolen moment—and they set the stage for a great photo op.

- 9} Get creative with guest favors. Here, cocoa powder gets a stylish makeover with red and white ties and a gift tag labeling it "the perfect mix."
- 10} No snowball throwing allowed! But you can cater to your guests' playful side with cold-weather games like this ice-sculpted tic-tac-toe board by Metro Ice Sculptures.

- 11} Stunning custom-designed rings from Graham Jewelers put the ice where it belongs: on the bride's left hand.
- 12} To-go drinks get a hearty dose of cute, thanks to custom-made cup sleeves printed with the couple's names and wedding date.
- 13} Embellished with striking fonts

- and graphic patterns, these dessert display labels are almost as lovely as the sweet treats themselves.
- 14} Make your dessert spread even cooler by setting it on a monogrammed ice bar by Ice Carvings Etc.
- 15} Hot beverages will taste even better poured from pretty decanters into chic fur-covered mugs. *
